

WOMEN'S STUDIES STUDENTS

Women Hold Up Half the Sky!

... but women don't seem to be present among the carpenters working for subcontractors like VPS Drywall or Form Up on the renovation of Eaton Hall, the future home of Women's Studies at Tufts! Neither of these New Hampshire-based contractors participate in registered apprenticeship programs that train women to become carpenters.

The Carpenters Union understands the importance of equity and representation in construction. This is why the Carpenters Union dedicates substantial resources toward recruiting, training, and retaining female carpenters.

There are hundreds of carpentry contractors throughout Massachusetts who participate in registered apprenticeship programs that support workforce diversity. As the project owner, why doesn't Tufts demand that all contractors working on its projects support this goal through participation in registered apprenticeship programs?

Where is Tufts' supposed commitment to diversity and equity?

Demand Good Jobs for Female Carpenters!

A message brought to you by the North Atlantic States Regional Council of Carpenters, working for good jobs in our communities. We are not asking any person to stop performing any services or to refuse to pick up, handle, or transport any goods. Please don't litter.